Strategic Management

Prof. Inhyeock "Ian" Lee, Quinlan School of Business, Loyola University Chicago

SHORT COURSE DESCRIPTION

---

This course is designed to develop skills needed for analyzing a strategic problem to arrive at a strategic managerial decision about it after synthesizing all the relevant information. Specifically, one of the objectives in this course is to learn how to apply basic concepts of game theory to address strategic issues faced by businesses. Strategic managerial decisions by a manager are not static and cannot be made in isolation. Instead, a manager must account for the expected strategic actions and reactions of rival firms, subordinates, and superiors, etc., to his/her directives and proposals. Game theory is a powerful tool for examining strategic interactions among multiple players in a real business world.

In addition, this course is designed to provide tools and concepts for identifying the key drivers of superior performance of firms by focusing on strategic management issues. As a result, the second purpose of this course is to provide an opportunity for students to study and analyze both internal resources and external environmental forces of firms associated with firm performance. The course will allow students to bring together all of their learned functional skills (accounting, marketing, finance, etc.) and apply them to the study of strategic management issues faced by business firms.

Lastly, virtually every management decision being made today is influenced by international factors, and naive thinking about international politics, economics, cultures, and foreign competitors can have quick and adverse effects on a firm's bottom line. The final objective of this course is to provide relevant theoretical and practical insights on multinational enterprises (MNEs) to management students, so that the real world of international strategic management is better understood.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS AND GRADING

In-class Test (2):	200 pts.
Final Exam (1):	100 pts
Group In-class Activities (11):	220 pts.
Participation:	150 pts.
Total Points:	670 pts.

Test: There will be three tests for this course during the summer term. These are either closed book/note tests or take-home exams. Although the final exam will not be cumulative, the knowledge of the previous materials will be necessary. They will be comprised of multiple choice questions, case analyses, short answer questions, and/or problem-solving questions.

Group In-class Activities: There will be eleven group activities in classes throughout this summer term. These group activities will be comprised of either (1) solving a problem set with game-theoretic situations or (2) discussing a mini-case example and answering several questions attached to the case in a group. Each group is required to submit a group activity sheet with written answers to the instructor before the end of each class. There will be no make-up opportunities for missed group activities. Detailed information will be discussed in the classes.

Participation: All students are encouraged to attend classes and participate in the group in-class activities in each class. In addition, each member of a group should submit eleven confidential peer evaluations (after each group in-class activity is finished) to the instructor on the performance and contribution of his/her team members. Peer evaluations will be used to assess each student's contribution to each group project.

Final Grade
