

Kim, Tae-hyo (金泰孝)

E-mail: thkim01@skku.edu

At Present, KIM Tae-hyo is Dean of the Graduate School for National Strategy and Professor at the Department of Political Science, Sungkyunkwan University, Seoul, Republic of Korea. He is also Vice-President and Director for International Cooperation at the New Asia Research Institute, and Editor of the New Asia Journal.

Dr. Kim's research focus centers on security strategy and security relations in Northeast Asia. His books include Why Do They Argue Over the Correct Answer?: Korean Foreign Policy Debate Untold by Textbooks (SKKU Press, 2019), Foreign Policy in the 21st Century (Myung-in Books, 2016), the Future of U.S.-Korea-Japan Relations: Balancing Values and Interests (CSIS Press, 2004), Korea-Japan Security Relations: Prescriptive Studies (Oruem Publishing House, 2000) and he has published more than 80 papers in security-related journals.

Formerly, Senior Secretary to the President for National Security (2012), Deputy National Security Advisor (2008-2011), Professor at the National Diplomatic Academy (2002-2005). Educated at Sogang University (B.A., 1990), Cornell University (M.A., 1993), and the University of Chicago (Ph.D., 1997).

Awarded the Nakasone Peace Prize (2009) and a medal for distinguished service in the government (2012).